INTRODUCTION

What is Keshta ?

"Keshta", in many Arab and Muslim cultures, typically refers to a social gathering where people gather or assemble. People come together to discuss various topics, share stories, and connect with one another.

Keshta can take many forms, such as family gatherings, business meetings, religious gatherings, or political discussions. In a traditional context, a Keshta is often held in a special room or area of a home or mosque, with guests seated on carpets or cushions, and refreshments is served.
